General Election Audience (Registered Voters)

The Alec Smith Emergency Insulin Act proposed that Minnesotans who qualify have access to a 90-day supply of insulin at a significantly reduced price. To qualify, Minnesotans must be either uninsured or face out-of-pocket insulin costs of $5,000 or more. The emergency supply would be funded by a fee paid by the three largest insulin manufacturers, who collectively control over 90 percent of the U.S. market.
