The thinking of a poker player - decisions under uncertainty

13:15 - 14:15 - Interactive Stage

Jan Heitmann
(Poker Expert)

Be early. There are only limited seats available.

Poker and business have a lot in common: the bad players often do not know, what kind of game they are even playing. Poker works great as a model for decision making. There is something to be gained (the pot in the middle), something you have to risk for it (by betting), all under time pressure and financial restraints, against competent competition, under uncertainty and incomplete information. Using Poker as a model, Jan Heitmann explains concepts and strategies used by world class poker players to make better decision under uncertainty. Be sure to check out his talk at the Interactive stage!
