

Voter Guide

Gubernatorial Primary

Primary Election
June 26, 2018

Dan Fisher

Dan Fisher is the only candidate who has pledged to make abolishing abortion his number one priority. He has published a strategic plan to accomplish his mission using state sovereignty. He is the only candidate who has endorsed and supports Senator Silk's SB 817, the "Abolition of Abortion in Oklahoma Act," which would criminalize abortion as murder. Fisher has pledged to enforce the law regardless of any court attempt to thwart the exercise of justice.

Todd Lamb

Todd Lamb claims that babies are safer in the womb today than when he came into office, in spite of the fact that abortion is still legal and that two new abortion facilities have opened during his time in office. He has promised to keep doing what he has done in the past, but his record ranges from modest health care regulation many years ago, to doing nothing for the past eight years. When offered opportunities to support active legislation in recent years, he has declined to help.

Gary Jones

When Gary Jones was asked what he would do about abortion, he said, "I will sign whatever bill the legislature sends to me, as long as it is constitutional," indicating that he believes abortion is constitutional. Jones has no plan to actively work against abortion. When Jones was a candidate for the legislature he was not in favor of regulating abortion in cases of rape or in cases where there was an issue with the "health of the mother." He has stated that fixing the budget is his priority.

Gary Richardson

Gary Richardson believes that Christians must obey civil authorities; therefore, we must submit to abortion until the Supreme Court changes the policy. By Richardson's logic, German Christians were wrong to protect their fellow human beings from ethnic cleansing, and American Christians were wrong to help slaves escape to freedom on the underground railroad. Even the apostles, who refused to quit preaching about Jesus, would be in violation of Gary Richardson's political policy.

Kevin Stitt

Kevin Stitt has said he believes abortion is a federal issue and we must pray about it. He has refused to say he would criminalize it and would not offer to support Senator Silk's bill to abolish abortion. The strategy of praying and waiting for the federal government to stop abortion has been ineffectual for forty-five years; it ignores the moral and legal obligation of Oklahoma officials to protect the lives of those within their jurisdiction and to uphold the "equal protection of the laws," as stated in the Constitution of the United States.

Mick Cornett

Mick Cornett is the mayor of a city which is now hosting a new abortion facility. Cornett did nothing to keep it from opening, nor has he ever issued any public statement against the facility opening in his city. We are left to believe that his policy would be to beautify the roads to the facility and provide public transportation to the front door. Cornett has never been strong on social issues. After a deadly shooting in an Orlando night club, rather than focusing on the murders, Cornett focused instead on celebrating homosexuality, going out of his way to bathe the giant sculpture of the scissortail flycatcher over Interstate 40 in gay-pride colors and drawing everyone's attention to it. Cornett is a self-professed moral relativist who seems to care only for taxing and spending.

Oklahomans United for Life Director John Michener asks visitors to the State Capitol to support Senator Joseph Silk's SB 817, the "Abolition of Abortion in Oklahoma Act."