

21 Incentives

TO BUILD FAMILY CONNECTION

21 Incentives include 21 "coupons" that have been meticulously designed around the 5 Love Languages, which are intended to build family connection. In light of positive parenting, these incentives have been created bearing in mind that rewards have been found to have negative long-term implications for children. As parents, it is crucial to understand that it's our connection with our kids – not any sticker, treat or punishment that can help get them back on track. In the short run, it generally takes tangible incentives to get a behaviour going, but in the long run, it is our positive social attention that is the most powerful.

21 Incentives has been intended to do just that! Using this product correctly, it can build self-discipline, intrinsic control, delayed gratification, and intrinsic motivation and eliminates or drastically reduces the need for direct, coercive control of a child by the parent, therefore strengthening the parent-child relationship.

Included in this product is an in depth explanation about incentives, why rewards generally don't work, steps on how to use the product and beautifully decorated incentives.

Think about this: What are you really trying to teach your child? What is the message you want to send your child?
