What to look for in a new Mac

- New is preferred, but refurbished from the Apple website provides the same warranty
- The Macbook Pro, Macbook Air and Macbook models do not have standard USB ports. You may need to buy adapters if you have USB peripherals (mice, external hard drives, etc).
- Get the maximum amount of RAM you can afford. Mac RAM cannot be replaced after market.
- Make sure you get enough storage. Macbook Pro, Macbook and Macbook Air hard drives cannot be upgraded after purchase. Lower end macs tend to have smaller hard drives. You probably need at least 256 GB. Additional iCloud space can free up room on smaller computers if you store your pictures in iCloud.
- iMac storage drive upgrades (fusion or solid state) are worth the money as they will extend the usable life of your mac.
- Apple Care is a great warranty and should be strongly considered.
