

Adult Feline Wellness Program

Annual Wellness Exam 1-6 Years of Age

Comprehensive Physical Exam

- Ears
- Mouth
- Eyes
- Skin
- Heart & Lungs
- Abdominal Palpation
- Joints
- Body Condition

Discussion Topics

- Health History
- Physical Exam Findings
- Nutrition
- Behavior
- Aging
- Internal & External Parasites
- Use of Revolution®

Diagnostics

- Fecal Exam
- FeLV/FIV Testing
- Electric CBC & Blood Chemistry

Vaccination and Dewormers

- FVRCP/Rabies Vaccine
- FeLV Vaccine
(Indoor/Outdoor Cats)
- FIV Vaccine
(Indoor/Outdoor Cats)
- Revolution®
- Pyrantel® Dewormer

For more information, visit the American Animal Hospital Association website, www.aaaha.org

Animal Medical Center

622 McKinley
Great Bend, Kansas 67530

Dr. Nels Lindberg, DVM
Dr. Matt Fehr, DVM
Dr. Ty Brunswig, DVM
Dr. Caitlyn Redding, DVM

620-792-1265

Like us on Facebook!

Wellness Vaccinations

Vaccines are the most important component of any wellness program. Vaccines stimulate immunity against the common contagious feline diseases. These diseases included Feline Rhinotracheitis, Calicivirus, Panleukopenia, Chlamydia Psittaci, and Rabies. Cats in multicat households or cats that are indoor/outdoor cats should be vaccinated for Feline Leukemia Virus and Feline Immunodeficiency Virus. The vaccines we use today do a great job of preventing a disease and are a must for any cat.

Wellness Internal Parasite Control

Internal parasites continue to plague our pet population even today. Many of these parasites reside in the digestive tract of your pet. Your pet becomes infected by ingesting eggs or immature larvae from the environment. Cats can pick these up anywhere including your yard and the park.

Some of these parasites absorb nutrients from the food of your pet while others suck blood from the intestinal walls. Either way, if these parasites are present in large enough numbers they can cause some serious problems. Some of these parasites even have the potential to cause disease people, especially young children and pregnant women.

Once monthly Revolution® kills the worms in the digestive tract and decreases fecal shedding of their eggs, which decreases the risk to you and your children.

You may have heard about heartworms in dogs, however, cats can also be infected with heartworms. Although this occurs less commonly in cats than dogs, the disease is much more severe and is difficult to detect until its too late. This is why we recommend once monthly Revolution®.

Wellness External Parasite Control

Fleas and mites are the most common external parasites plaguing pets and their owners. Fleas and some mites survive by sucking blood from your pet, while other mites inhabit your cat's ear canal. They can cause serious irritation to your pet's skin and ears which results in constant scratching, hair loss, and even skin infections. Fleas can also serve as an intermediate host for tape worms. During normal grooming, your pet can ingest the flea and become infected with the tape worm. We've come a long way from flea dips and ineffective and sometimes toxic products. Once monthly Revolution® prevents flea and ear mite infestations, keeping you and your pet happy.