

100 years after the Russian Revolution,
join us for a series exploring

The Lessons from October

In October 1917 the people of Russia overturned the rule of their despots and began to establish a new society. The founding principles of the Russian Revolution were that the economy should be organized to meet everyone's needs, not to secure profits; democracy should be incorporated in the workplace, as well as in the government; cooperation should replace competition as the basis of human relations; and minorities should gain self-determination.

100 years later, join us for a series of events on "The Lessons from October" to discuss what we can learn from the Russian Revolution concerning social work and our quest for social justice.

University of Maryland
School of Social Work
Auditorium
(525 West Redwood Street)

LESSONS FROM OCTOBER FOR HEALTH AND HEALTH CARE

Monday, October 30, at 6:00PM

Mark Dudzic, National Coordinator of Labor for a Single Payer and long-time union organizer

LESSONS FROM OCTOBER FOR SOCIAL WORK AND SOCIAL WELFARE

Monday, November 6, at noon

Bob Seidel of the Revolutionary Workers Group
Professor Michael Reisch of the UMSSW

LESSONS FROM OCTOBER FOR ORGANIZING AGAINST OPPRESSION IN A DIVERSE AND DIVIDED SOCIETY

Tuesday, November 7, at 6:00PM

Professor William Mello of the Indiana University School of Social Work, Department of Labor Studies

EACH EVENT WILL BE HELD IN THE UMSSW AUDITORIUM.

ALL ARE WELCOME!

