NMADILI OKWUMABUA is an urban planner, African architecture historian, and CEO of Southern Sahara, a consultancy service she established in 2005, for the research and development of a modern architectural language for Africa. Her development of the Community Planning & Design Initiative Africa (CPDI Africa) annual design-build competition was born from her belief that this evolution of African architecture develop as the result of collaborative efforts by built environment professionals. Nmadili Okwumabuas' professional experience in the built environment spans 20 years, covering community planning, residential design, interior design, facility management, real estate brokerage and portfolio management. She is a licensed Realtor in the state of Georgia and Certified Property Manager with Broll CBRE South Africa. She holds a masters degree in African Studies from Clark Atlanta University where her research findings in contemporary Nigerian Architecture inspired the design brief for CPDI Africa. Ms. Okwumabua consults internationally, mainly in the US and Nigeria where she continues to inspire the future shapers of Africa's built environment.

The Art of African Architecture!

TRAVELING EXHIBITION

The Community Planning & Design Initiative Africa is proud to present The Art of African Architecture Exhibition, a celebration of Wining Designs from the CPDI Africa Bi-annual Modern African Architecture Design Competition. This special traveling exhibit features innovative contemporary conceptual designs inspired by traditional architecture across the continent of Africa. Wining submissions are researched and developed by international architects and designers from all around the world!

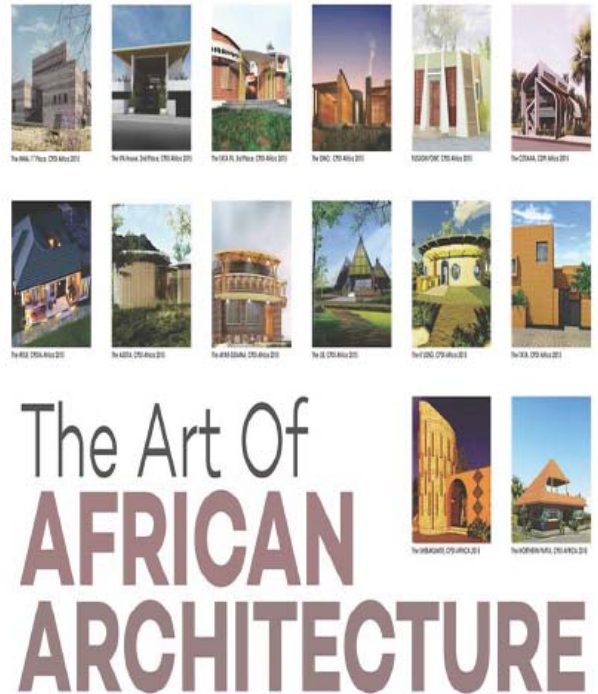

Join CPDI Africa and Partners as we celebrate built environment professionals from over 50 countries, including Vietnam, Nigeria, The Republic of Benin, Puerto Rico, Japan, Malawi, Russia, USA, Ethiopia, Czeck Republic and more. Build on this pioneering African and Diaspora conceptual architecture for developing course curriculum and master planning new neighborhoods and communities!

The Community Planning & Design Initiative Africa

Developing New Architectural Languages That Are Culturally And Environmentally Sustainable.

Nmadili Okwumabua, Founder, CPDI AFRICA

The Community Planning & Design Initiative Africa - CPDI Africa is a culture-inspired, research-based, design-build competition, created to inspire the development of successful neighborhoods and communities in African and the Diaspora, with modern African architecture that is both culturally and environmentally sustainable. Believing that the redevelopment of Africa's built environment should be as it has always been, built as a collaborative effort between the community members and designated master builders, CPDI Africa engages participation from the design community in Africa and the Diaspora at large, for the accomplishment of its vision.
