

List of Apps for Ministry GCC Camp meeting 2014

Most of these are free. Links to the apps are included.

Expensify- Expense Reports made easy and they look professional

iTunes

Google Play

Brainspark- Video presentations for Android phones (not tablet based)

Google Play

SlideShark- converts your PowerPoint files without losing any of your original formatting, transitions, or animations for IPAD

iTunes

BC Reader - For those who do a lot of networking but find someone who doesn't have Bump installed on their phone (see above), use this handy app to scan in information from business cards.

iTunes (iPhone)

iTunes (iPad)

e-sword Bible reader application for Windows Mobile and Pocket PC devices. In addition to the e-Sword application, there are several free Bible translations and Bible study tools which you can load onto your device for use with the e-Sword program.

iTunes (iPad)

Google Play (My Sword) (Not the same but very close)

IFTTT IF This Then That is a service that lets you create powerful connections with one simple statement (Helps to automate your online and social media life)

iTunes

Google Play

MindMeister- I just found this app today, but I've had my eye on a few "Mind Mapping" apps for a while (MindMeister is free, just download it, register for a free account, and you're good to go). I'm a big outliner, it's just the way I think and work through things. be using this app a lot!

iTunes

Google Play

CloudOn- This is a great app I found a few weeks ago that lets you edit documents from cloud storage (DropBox, Box, etc.) from within the app and saves it directly within that cloud-based folder. I don't like it for creating a new document, but Cloudon allows me to make a quick edit and save it without any third party addons.

iTunes

Google Play

Calculator for iPad Free- Because math is hard for many people and the iPad doesn't include a built-in calculator, there's Calculator for iPad Free. Like its name suggests, the app is free and includes both a standard and a scientific calculator; a $2 upgrade gives you several color schemes to choose from.

iTunes

Dropbox- Access important files anywhere with this cloud-storage service. Save a file to the Dropbox folder on your computer and it'll be available from the Dropbox iPad app. Automatically save photos and videos from your iPad to your Dropbox account to access them from other devices as well.

iTunes

Google Play

TED- Riveting talks by remarkable people, free to the world.

iTunes

Google Play

Evernote- Sometimes you find yourself collecting so much digital stuff that you need a place to keep it all. For that, there's Evernote. This free app lets you store your notes, ideas, to-do lists and much more — all synchronized for access from other devices as well.

iTunes

Google Play

Penultimate- Penultimate is a hand-written note taking app created by the good folks at Evernote. Because it is owned by Evernote, as soon as you are done taking your notes, it automatically saves them into a designated Evernote folder for you. I love using this app for taking notes in meetings.

iTunes

Khan Academy-Khan Academy allows you to learn almost anything for free with a library of over 3,500 educational videos.

iTunes

Udemy- Free and Paid content for classes everything from how to shot video with iPhone to Network security and business management

iTunes

Google Play

Flipboard-Flipboard bills itself as “your personal magazine.” Browse handpicked articles on various topics and pipe in updates from your Twitter, Facebook, Instagram and Tumblr accounts for a one-stop shop that caters to your interests.

iTunes

Google Play

iTunesU-Of all the things to shrink down so it fits inside an iPad, a world-class education might top the list. Apple's iTunes U app features over half a million lectures, videos and books from some of the top learning institutions around the globe — all for free.

iTunes

Kindle- There are several worthwhile e-book reading apps to choose from, but Amazon's Kindle platform gets the nod thanks to its availability on just about every other device on the market. If it's connected, you can probably use it to read a Kindle book.

iTunes

Google Play

Paper- Paper is a free iPad app with a simple interface that lets you write, sketch and paint in virtual notebooks. It may not seem like rocket science, but realistically replicating the feel of various writing and art utensils on a tablet screen is a complicated feat that Paper pulls off with style.

iTunes

Pinterest- It took Pinterest, the Web's most popular pin board, until last August to roll out an iPad app. Better late than never, as the free app makes for a great couch companion. Pass the time browsing your friends' pins, or pin things from around the Web that you'd like to revisit later.

iTunes

Google Play

Pocket-Pocket lets you grab various bits from around the Web — articles, videos, images and more— and save them for later perusal. The free app takes text articles and takes out all the ads, buttons and other digital items to present a clean, easy-on-the-eyes reading experience.

iTunes

Google Play

Skype-The iPad's built-in FaceTime feature makes it a snap to video-chat with other Apple owners, but — surprise!— not everyone owns Apple products. Skype makes video chatting a bit more universal, with apps for just about every platform and tons of active users.

iTunes

Google Play

Spotify-For $10 a month, Spotify acts like a giant music store where you can listen to as much music as you want. You can create playlists of your favorite tunes and download songs for offline playback. There's also a streaming radio option, which is free for U.S. users.

iTunes

Google Play

TuneIn Radio- Think of the free TuneIn app as being able to turn your iPad into a radio capable of pulling in just about any station from just about anywhere in the world. The service boasts 70,000 live radio-station feeds and 2 million podcasts to choose from.

iTunes

Google Play

Adobe Reader- Previewing e-mailed PDF files is built in to the iPad's Mail app, but Adobe's free Reader app includes advanced functions such as annotations, text search, highlighting, online synchronization and the ability to fill out form fields. If you work with PDF files a lot, this one's a must.

iTunes

Google Play

WunderList : Wunderlist is the easiest way to manage and share your to-do lists. Whether you're planning an overseas adventure, sharing a shopping list with a loved one or running your very own business

iTunes

Google Play

YapTap- A simple group messaging app built specifically for churches, ministries, and youth groups, allowing group leaders to guide and moderate conversations, control privacy settings, and assign messaging privileges to other members. As long as they're connected to the internet, participants can instantly reach their entire group across several platforms over email, text, Twitter or Facebook. Import your contacts from another database or invite via email or SMS, drag-and-drop current members into new groups, set groups as open or require approval, and grant other Group Leaders management permissions.

iTunes

Google Play

YouVersion- One of the best Bible-reading apps out there. It has a huge amount of free versions, along with several great reading plans that will help you track your progress. There is built-in social sharing to easily share what you're reading or learning. And it syncs across devices so you can pick up where you left off no matter what you're reading on.

iTunes

Google Play

Dragon Dictation- This talk-to-text app allows you to just speak what you want to type and it transcribes it for you. It's amazingly accurate in several languages, and can be a real time saver when you want to type out something long and all you have is your iPhone's on-screen keyboard.

iTunes

Google Play

IMDb- The International Movie Database is a great website, but their app is really awesome on the go, too. One of the best parts for pastors and leaders is the Parent's Guide, which will help you gauge how family-friendly a movie is. So if you hear some parents say they're going to take their kids to the next blockbuster, you can just open up IMDb right there and help them decide if it's a wise choice for their kids.

iTunes

Google Play

Air Sketch- This cool app can turn your iPad into a portable whiteboard, with your drawings being projected to a screen via wifi. It can completely revolutionize your presentations, teaching, and meetings!

iTunes

HootSuite- There are several good apps out there for gathering your social media feeds in one place. My personal favorite is HootSuite, but what I think is most important is that pastors and ministry leaders stay involved in social media, regardless of what app they use to do it. Facebook keeps you connected with your congregation and community, and Twitter gives you real-time information. Both are essential for a thriving ministry.

iTunes

Google Play

Bible for Kids- The Bible for Kids app was created by the YouVersion team. It's FREE. And my 4-year-old daughter loves it. If you have kids get it. You should also recommend it to parents in your church for a fun, interactive way to get kids to learn Bible stories.

iTunes

Google Play

Feedly- An alternative feed reader.

iTunes

Google Play
